Thursday 22 November – an additional, joint meeting with the Economic and Social, and European History seminars – afternoon workshop, 2-6.30 p.m., on 'Writing Microhistories', with guest speaker Professor Keith Wrightson (Yale). Venue: Coleridge Room, Jesus College.

Seminars are followed at 6.45 by a drink in Trinity Hall bar, and at 7.15 by dinner in a local restaurant, to which all are welcome.

While the convenors take turns to chair the seminars, they are very happy to step aside if any member wishes to try their hand at chairing.

Seminars generally take the form of a 50-minute paper, either by senior visitors or by Cambridge PhD students, but sometimes take the form of informal surveys of historiographies, or of current collaborative projects, or an intellectual autobiography of a lifetime spent in early modern history.

Convenors: Mark Goldie, Clare Jackson, John Morrill, David Smith, Alex Walsham.
