

Frans Sant-Acker, Still Life with Nautilus Cup (detail), 1648–1688, oil on canvas, 66x56.5 cm, Amsterdam, Rijksmuseum, SK-A-2655.

Oceanic and Maritime History Workshop Lent Term 2023

Join us on Zoom, 5-6:15 pm (UK time). Links will be circulated through our mailing list and on an individual basis. To register your attendance please email camoceanichistory@gmail.com.

3 February / Coastal Societies and Resilience in Pre-Modern Europe

LENA WALSCHAP (KU Leuven / University of Antwerp)

Seas of Risk and Resilience: Peasant Fishing in late medieval Bosham from a Socioeconomic and Environmental Perspective

ANA ISABEL LOPES (University of Porto)

Vulnerability and Resilience in Coastal Communities of North-Western Portugal (late 16th – middle 19th century)

17 February / Humans, Nature, and Ecologies in Latin America

LUCY FOSTER (University of Cambridge)

Seashells: The Axis of Oceanic and Archaeological Histories of Mexico

MARCELO CABARCAS (University of Pittsburgh)

A History of Shortcomings: Engineering, Waterscapes and Spatial Segregation in Cartagena, Colombia

3 March / Decolonial Texts and Ideas across the Indian Ocean

MANASWINI SEN (University of Hyderabad)

The Indian Ocean and an Alternative Narrative of Decolonisation:

Transcontinental Ties and Spread of Communism in the Working-Class Movement of Bengal (1920–1947)

PRANAV M (University of Calicut)

Resistive Texts: Tuhfat al-mujāhidīn as a Decolonial Reflex to the Coloniality of Os Lusíadas